COUNCIL BUSINESS

13. ARD Annual Report and Request for Changes to the Park Impact Mitigation Fee

Kahl Muscott, District Administrator for the Auburn Recreation District, presented the ARD Annual Report (available in the City Clerk's office).

Council Member Holmes asked what the balance is in the Auburn park mitigation fee fund.

Kahl Muscott said he believes it is $75,000-$80,000.

Kahl Muscott then presented a slide show highlighting ARD facilities and services. He then showed a presentation on City of Auburn park impact mitigation fees including the nexus impact fee study. He formally requested the Auburn City Council consider an increase of park fees at an upcoming meeting.

Council Member Holmes asked about the fee for schools to use ARD's pool, the plan to rebuild the recently burned playground and fees collected for maintenance for "pocket parks" within the City.

Council Member Hanley asked about the report on proposed expenditures, fees suggested in the nexus study, use of the fees, sphere of influence provision, "level of service" analysis, Quimby Act, and Baltimore Ravine's impact.

Council Member Nesbitt asked about a balance sheet, capital replacement fee use, and a maintenance budget for new projects.

Mayor Powers asked when the last increase of park fees took place and asked about details in the Nexus study.

Members of the Board of Directors for Auburn Recreation District addressed the Council during public comment, which included: Scott Holbrook, Gordon Ainsleigh, Jim Farris and Curtis Smith.

Jerry Wilfley, resident on Snowy Owl Way, spoke about donation of land for parks as opposed to fees.

Dan Sokol, resident of Auburn, spoke in favor of the park mitigation fee increase.

Council Member Nesbitt explained why he believes $5,500 is an appropriate level of funding.

Council Member Holmes said the Community Development Department needs to look at the long-term future build-out of Auburn before a particular fee is set.

Council Member Hanley said the determination of the fee should be focused on the future of Auburn, the future of ARD, and how to provide adequate recreation facilities and services for the community.

Mayor Powers said new development in the City needs to pay for itself. She said ARD needs to work on a strategic plan of their needs in the next 5 years to benefit the new citizens as well as the current citizens of Auburn.

Council Member Hanley asked about trend analysis with this program and neighborhood watch programs.

Captain Ruffcorn explained there is a more in depth program with this software, which is not being utilized due to cost. He also said the search will be limited as to history.
